Native Artist Casts Mystic Charm Over Maine's Hills.
Exquisite Pencil Drawings of George Lorenzo Noyes Form Unique Record of a Life Spent in Solitude Among the Trackless Mountain Wilds.
Dr. George F. Kunz, the well-known gem expert of Tiffany's, has in his possession a group of or series of small pictures that may be safely be called unique. They are miniature pencil drawings—"gems," in their way—hardly more than three or four inches square, recording the impressions of George Lorenzo Noyes, a self-taught artist who during his long lifetime of fifty years has lived in the village of Norway, Me.

Noyes loves the mountains and knows their every mood and aspect. He depicts them with all the sensitive delicacy and minuteness that portraitists bestow upon human or other animated subjects.
He has developed a peculiar technique, in his intricate way of the upland wilderness. His depiction of the elementary forms of earth and sky and clouds, and the sense of space and atmosphere derived from a truly masterful handling of aerial perspective, at first glance suggest photography. Another look, and the composition work of a born artist is apparent in the noble simplicity and balance of the lines, with an austere elimination of all petty detail.

No sign of human life or animated nature—nothing emotional or romantic—nothing subjective, to give a clue as to the artist's personal viewpoint. There is something cold and aloof in his shy solitary mysticism, as impressionized in these drawings. And yet, there is the elemental emotion of the hills themselves—"the pure and holy hills, treated as a link between heaven and earth."

Here are wild ravines, with lightning-blazed trees shuddering on the brink—still, chill, lonely, and amid low, sunlit, silhouetted against a bright sky, or black on soft clouds—glittering dawns and strange sunsets illuminating some weird no-man's land of rocky hillsides, gnarled forests, and dreary wastes dotted with stunted pines.

Robert Manon, assistant editor of the American Machinist, New York City, is spending a two weeks' vacation with his wife and children at Cummings' bungalow.
Timothy Sullivan has left Beals Tavern and gone to Newburyport to work. Hubert Brooks now has his position as clerk.

An Interesting Map of Norway.

In the back office of the Freehold Hove Insurance agency hangs an interesting map of Oxford County. This map, dated 1888 shows all the roads, villages and natural features of the County at that time. In addition to these are small maps of all the villages in the County showing houses and names of residents.

According to this map in '58 Norway had but ten streets at that time. These were Main street, Water street (then called Mill street), Bridge street (then called Water street), Pleasant street, Danforth, Cottage, Deering, Oak, Greenleaf avenue, (no bridge across the river) Paris and Fair streets and the short street back of the Norvelly Turning Co., at the Falls.

Norway was well represented by industries in '58. There was a paper mill run by L. D. Moore at the Falls, besides a shingle and grist mill run by M. P. Smith, a saw mill run by Yeaton & Tubbs and a foundry operated by J. Brown at the same place.

The next industry of any size on Main street was Horne & Caverly's tannery on the site occupied by Beck's garage and W. F. Tubbs' shop. Where C. B. Cummings dove mill now stands was a foundry. In back of the foundry was another shop and foundry. The mills at the head of Main street were the same as at present, except that the northern building was then used as a grist mill.

Norway had but two churches then the Universalist in the present site and a Congregational, three houses below the present church.
The two primary schools were in the same place as at present and we believe are the same. The high school was in the present site.
Stores were numerous as at present and also many "shops." Among the stores noticed were Mixer & Watson's on the present Advertiser building site and in the same building.

R. Noyes, the present Noyes drug store was a store and post office and a saloon. A daguerian opposite the Elm House which was standing as at present, then the only hotel in town. The Advertiser was on the site of the Horne block.
A business directory was appended to the map and may be interesting.
Dry goods and groceries, I. A. Denison, G. Verrill, E. C. Shackley, S. Favor, Physicians, Asa Danforth, J. S. Mill, J. Howe.

Attorneys, W. W. Virgin, Levi Whitman.
Jewellers, J. Whitmarsh, W. M. Cushman.
D. P. Noyes, druggist, postmaster and express agent. Tannery Horne & Caverly; blacksmith, E. C. Allen; harness maker, B. Tucker, jr.; shoemakers, S. S. Hall; J. C. Drew; carriage makers, O. A. Hall; wood carving, G. C. Cole; cabinet makers, O. F. Mixer; hotel, Otis True.

A Birthday Party.
James D. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Smith, celebrated a few of his young friends in honor of his sixth birthday, Monday afternoon, August 10th.
A large part of the time was spent in playing games on the lawn, with music on the phonograph, and a cake with presents of ice cream and cake were served. A nice birthday cake was presented by Katherine Morrill, each piece bearing a tiny American flag, which was taken home by the guests as souvenirs of the occasion.

The party broke up about 5 o'clock, leaving nice gifts for the little host.
Those present were, Roland Andrews, Glenn Andrews, Hosea Curtis, Fred Lewis, Marie Frost, Marietta Cushman, Elizabeth Bruce, James D. and Harry A. Smith.

Richardson's Barn Burned.
In Tuesday's shower Mark Richardson's old barn in Norway Center was struck by lightning and burned very quickly. The neighbors came to their aid but were too late. Two horses, two calves, were burned and considerable loss. The building was insured for about $600. The building used as a creamery near the barn was saved.

HUDSON Six-40 for 1915

With 31 New Features

New Price $1,550 F. O. B. Detroit

Your Model Car

At an Unexpected Price

The Hudson Six-40 for 1915 brings out 32 surprises. There are 31 new features—each an important refinement. And there is a new price—$200 less than last year—due to a trebled output.

This new-type Six came out last year to mark the HUDSON conception of the coming car. The HUDSON Engineers—headed by Howard E. Coffin—had devoted three years to the model.

By clever designing and better materials they attained a remarkable lightness. By a new-type motor they reduced operative cost about 30 per cent. under former cars of like capacity.

It was the handsomest car of the year.

It offered many new ideas in equipment.

And the price—$1,750—was the lowest price quoted on a quality car, either Fours or Sixes. That car was so welcome that the enormous factory output was 3000 cars oversold.

31 Refinements

Now these same engineers—48 of them—have spent a whole year on refinements. The new model—for 1915—with 31 important improvements.

The output has been trebled. And the quantity saving—$200 per car—has been taken from the price.

Now this quality Six—the finest HUDSON production—sells for $1,550, f. o. b. Detroit.

This new Hudson Six-40 will meet your ideals of a car. There was never built at any price a more exquisite Six. It will place any four-cylinder car out of the question at a price above $1,200.

EDITOR OF NORWAY ADVERTISER:

During the present summer my family are tramping over New England in our automobile, and sleeping in a tent on cots wherever we happen to be when night comes on. It is a most delightful out-of-door life. At present we are visiting I. O. Swift and family at West Summit. Many of your people already know of Mr. Swift's success as a farmer and an orchardist.

Yesterday I went with Mr. Swift to annual field day meeting of the Oxford Bears Fruit Growers Association with C. F. Sawyer and G. W. Cummings at Hebron Center. Governor Haines spoke for the apple growers. Professor Brown of Orono urged greater care in harvesting and packing. Hon. George Handren of England expressed the wishes of the foreign buyers, and Mr. Yeaton gave a most excellent lecture on the care of the orchard. No one spoke for the consumer, and I regret that I did not say what I am writing for The Advertiser.

My home is in Lynn, Mass., and for some years I have bought my apples of Mr. Swift because his orcharding is done in such a way that the apples keep and are of a superior quality. Last fall when my six barrels of apples arrived, one of my good neighbors felt so sure that I had bought too many apples for my own use, that he finally succeeded in buying one of these six barrels for his own home. I told him that I knew very well the perfect integrity of the man who grew the apples and that he would find the barrel a strictly honest one. After three weeks later this neighbor hastened to me at the close of a church service to say that his apples were all gone and to inquire if it would be possible to secure another barrel. This shows how the consumer feels when he gets the right kind of Maine apples, in spite of the fact that the fancy fruit counters of our New England cities are covered with cones of beautiful western fruit.

Through Mr. Yeaton's writings and from observations, many of your people have learned of Mr. Swift's beautiful farm, his matchless orchard, and his exceptional success as a Maine farmer. I have come to know Mr. Swift's character and mind very well through many years of intimate acquaintance. He has merited well all of his success. He has a high sense of honor, and he has given to all the activities of his farm the same exact thinking that men of science give to our greatest undertakings. He illustrates most perfectly "the strenuous life." In looking over his farm during this trip I have come to see clearly that successful farming is a product of the finest character and the clearest thinking. Maine is truly a great state and it is so chiefly because of its successful farmers, of which Mr. Swift is a fine type. I am proud to be a graduate of Bridgton Academy under the principalship of John F. Moody, one of your greatest teachers, and of Bowdoin College with its brilliant president, William DeWitt Hyde.

Second Prize Contest.

Bear Mountain Grange Saturday evening witnessed the second prize contest of the year of Class 3, under the direction of Sister Lulu Pinkham, who presented the following excellent program:

Piano Solo.....	Eva Hagood
Recitation.....	Mrs. Sias
Vocal Solo.....	George Hill
Reading.....	Mrs. Verrill
Tableau.....	Anna and young man's slave, eclipse of the sun, three scenes from the life of an office boy, woman's rights.
Solo.....	Margaret Sias
Reading.....	Mrs. Sias
Piano Trio.....	Mrs. Hamlin and Mrs. Sanderson.

Gratifying evidence of the prosperous condition of the Grange was the admission to the first and second degrees of one candidate, conferring third and fourth degrees on eight, and one application received. A fine harvest supper concluded the formal exercises.

An extension of the husking machine room of the corn packing shop, and other needed operations in preparation for the year's work are in progress.

The work of electric light wiring on the reconstructed buildings known as the old Houghton Tavern, which was mostly accomplished last winter, has been recently completed by the connection of the elaborate system extending through the large block with the powerful electric battery located in the machine shop on the outlet stream, known as the mill brook. The contract for the work was executed by Jameson L. Finney of Bethel, and is a grand testimonial to the efficiency of Mr. Finney as an electrician. It is enough to say that the lighting of the new mansion in every detail of its operation is so satisfactory to the owner, W. K. Hamlin, who is a superior mechanic and very exacting in all his preferences, as to be practically faultless.

Thursday, Aug. 13th, is the 96th anniversary of the birthday of America's distinguished Pioneer Woman Suffragist, and is being widely celebrated.

Brief Sketch of Waterford.

The town of Waterford is situated among the picturesque hills of Oxford County with no less than twelve lakes which cover an area of 1,784 acres. Crooked River comes into the town on the northwest and makes a sweeping circle and leaves on the south eastern side an derives its name from the manner in which it journeys. The Songo river also passes no less than eighteen miles through the town on its way to Sebago and to the sea.

In the southern part of the town are rugged hills known as Bear and Hawk mountains; all the names are relics of olden days. On the western side is Beek Hill and is one of the beautiful small mountains of the state.

The town of Waterford is comprised of several small villages with a population of about 1,000 and is devoted principally to farming. Waterford was first surveyed in 1774 and the next year David McWayne came here as the first settler. He came with his dog and located at a camp on Bear brook where he purchased a tract of land for $40.00.

At that time there were many Indians located in the section. In the following winter he returned to civilization but the following spring found him back on his domain. He died in 1825 and his 800 acres of land are now a valuable part of the town.

Among the early settlers was Eleazer Hamlin, the grandfather of Hannibal Hamlin. He came here in 1780 with his three younger brothers, also with a family of the name of Greene, of whom Dr. William W. Greene, is one of the descendants. After the Revolution, settlers began to come faster and among those were Daniel Barker, Jonathan Robbins, Asaph Brown, Philip Horr, Samuel Warren, Eber Rice and many others. The descendants of these families are still residents of the town.

Waterford is also noted as the home of Charles F. Brown, better known as Artemus Ward. He is among the first of the great American humorists. He was the son of Lydia and Caroline Browne and was born in 1834. The homestead is still standing in the village at Waterford Flat. He is buried in the cemetery only a short distance from his birth place. North Waterford is the largest village of the town where there are several stores, a church and a hotel which is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William B. Rice. This is one of the oldest houses in Maine and was built more than 125 years ago and was for several years the old tavern.

OXFORD.

Howe-Ling-Sells Circus and Wild West Shows.

The first circus which has visited Oxford village for several decades moved into town Saturday morning, August 8th, and proceeded to pitch its tents in Kay's Field.

According to the posters distributed over Oxford and the surrounding towns, it was an amateur exhibition under the auspices of the So-an-geta-ha Grouse Camp Fire Girls of Welchville and Ah-way-soos Group of Oxford, but the grounds had quite a professional appearance.

One large tent housed the menagerie, museum, and snake charmer, another contained the booths where ice cream, homemade candy, and lemonade were on sale, while a smaller third accommodated the fortune teller. No "big top" being available, the ring performance and Wild West show took place under the open sky.

Owing to a heavy shower which came up at noon, the audience was not as large as had been hoped, but it made up in enthusiasm what it lacked in numbers, and between $15 and $20 was taken at the gate and several booths.

Marian Fuller, So-an-geta-ha, took the part of the Spanish gypsy palmist and was very attractively dressed in scarlet, trimmed with jet. Those who "crossed her palm with silver" seemed fully satisfied with her skill as a teller of fortunes.

The candy, ice cream, and lemonade booths were in charge of Miss Brett of So-an-geta-ha and Misses Starbird and Pole of Ah-way-soos; while Miss Ramsell of So-an-geta-ha took charge of the museum, menagerie, and snake charmer. In the museum were pottery, bead and basket work from several tribes of Indians, a petrified bird's nest with eggs intact, a small collection of minerals, and various curios. The menagerie consisted of five cages of animals—including a Happy Family—a pet turtle, nearly as large as a half-dollar which amused visitors by eating flies placed before him, and Ah-way-soos—the mascot of the Oxford Camp Fire Girls. The latter was firmly and securely chained, not so much through fear of his being ferocious, as apprehension that some one might put him in a pocket and carry him off.

Ida Green, Ah-way-soos, in pale green and silver, attracted much attention in her role of snake charmer and deserves special mention as her snakes—five of them—though they lacked the size of boas, were alive and were handled in true professional style.

Misses Cutting and Kay, Ah-way-soos, were the clowns, the former dressed as a sun-bonnet girl of half a century ago, and the latter as Harlequin in red and yellow. Harry Fuller, also appeared as a girl in white middie, bloomers, half-hose and ankle ties.

The ring performance opened with a three-legged race between the two groups and was won by So-an-geta-ha. Tumbling and the "Elephant Walk" by girls from both groups followed. Perhaps the best act was that given by Bessie Greely, a nine-year old sister of the snake charmer, who turned somersaults from the shoulders of another acrobat, climbed ten feet between two uprights placed two and a half feet apart, climbed a sixteen foot vertical ladder passing through every second space between the rounds, and finishing her act by walking with her hands the length of another ladder placed horizontally.

The ring work finished with more aerial performances by some of the Boy Scouts who very kindly volunteered their services, and then the audience devoted their attention to the various tents while awaiting the Wild West numbers on the program.

A chorus of yells announced the approach of the rough riders who came into the arena at full gallop—and some of them came out of it before they could stop. They circled the field several times, putting their horses through various paces and maneuvers, and then took their places for the Virginia Reel, the horses executing the figures with promptness and also putting in a few flourishes of their own conception.

Next came fancy and trick riding. "Bronco Buck" (Forrest Thomas of the Scouts) with his single-footer "Dot" made the flying mount, went from the saddle under his horse's neck and back into the saddle without touching the ground, rode standing in and hanging from his saddle, and many other stunts including the "Figure 8." Agnes Fuller as "Bronco Bruce" was a typical cowboy from sombrero to leather chaps and with her well-known Indian pony pearance; her best work was picking up handkerchiefs from the ground with her horse at a gallop, and fancy riding, guiding her horse by the knee. The performance closed with a race between Miss Starbird on her Shetland "Dot," and Robinson on her mustang "Devey" and it was a close finish in favor of "Devey", but all agreed that "Dot" had more speed in proportion to her size and would be a champion if that size were only greater.

It was generally conceded that, had the weather been favorable, the Camp Fire Girls might well have changed their troupe's title to "Howe-Ling-Success."

Thrifty Lover.

When she returned from her summer vacation she received him with an icy demeanor.

"I'm going to give you back our engagement ring," she said. "I love another."

"Will you give me his name and address?" he inquired, as he took the ring. "His address!" she exclaimed, in surprise. "What are you going to do? Kill him?"

"No, indeed," was the reply. "I want to sell him this ring."—Lippincott's Magazine.

New Rules for Maine Potatoes.

The new regulations governing the shipments of potatoes from Maine, which the presence of powdery scab in this state has necessitated, have now been promulgated by the United States Department of Agriculture went into effect on August 1st. These regulations supersede the inspection hitherto carried on by the state authorities and are primarily designed to prevent the spread of powdery scab to other sections of the country. With this end in view, the inspection is made especially strict for all seed stock. This must be grown from clean seed and in soil not infected with powdery scab, and have been free from contact with anything through which they might have become infected with the disease.

The regulation provides that no potatoes shall be moved from any quarantined area unless they are duly certified as fit for either table or seed use and are packed in accordance with certain specified rules. To obtain the necessary certificates for shipments, growers must apply for inspection by a federal inspector and all potatoes intended for seed use must be stored and handled according to certain prescribed methods. Lots in which any of the potatoes are found to be infected with powdery scab or any similar disease will not be certified under any circumstances for seed use. They may, however, be certified for table use after the diseased potatoes are removed and destroyed.

The inspection will not be carried out in any warehouse in which the light is inadequate, or where conditions are unfavorable for thorough work. The inspectors must at all times have access to any part of the warehouse or car. Furthermore, all seed potatoes must be packed for shipment in sacks or other suitable containers which do not hold more than 180 pounds net weight, and these sacks must never have been used before for holding potatoes. It is provided, however, that associations of shippers having suitable facilities outside of the State of Maine may ship to themselves in carload bulk under certain stipulations. All containers that have been passed for shipment are to bear a card with the word "seed potatoes" or "table potatoes" printed on it. This card will be issued by the federal inspectors only, and must be signed or initialed by the man who issues it. A certificate must also be issued for each separate consignment, one copy of which will be retained by the inspector, another copy by the railroad, and the third by the consignor of the goods.

The rigid enforcement of these regulations will, it is believed, afford the necessary protection to all purchasers of seed potatoes, while interfering as little as possible with the business of the growers. Copies of the regulations can be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C. The headquarters for the inspection service for Maine will be located at Caribou, Aroostook county. W. B. Clark is superintendent of inspection for the Federal Horticultural Board.

New Kind of Money.

Federal Reserve Bank Notes Are in Course of Preparation.

Millions of dollars' worth of paper money of a new type will be put into use of the Federal reserve banks within the next few weeks.

Under the Federal Reserve Bank act each of the twelve Federal reserve banks will receive advances from the Federal Reserve Board in the form of Federal reserve notes, a distinctly new sort of paper money. Commercial paper with the collateral advanced by the various banks as security for those notes.

Comptroller of the Currency Williams has samples of this new paper money now under consideration. At his request Joseph E. Ralph, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, prepared notes of $5, $10, $20, $50, and $100 denominations, and these have been submitted to Secretary McAdoo. It is not likely, however, that the samples will be officially accepted until the members of the Federal reserve board have been convened by the Senate and can confer with Secretary McAdoo and Comptroller Williams concerning the new notes.

At present no officials of the Treasury Department is able to make any estimate of the amount of Federal reserve notes which will probably be put into circulation this year. Federal reserve banks are required under the new law, to keep gold reserves of not less than 40 per cent.

For some time the Treasury Department has been endeavoring to bring about the Federal reserve banks in actual circulation. The amount of Federal reserve notes required by the Federal reserve banks will depend largely on the amount of money required by member banks for the rediscounting of commercial paper.

Last year at harvest time Secretary McAdoo permitted banks in the Federal Reserve system to borrow money on commercial paper and about $37,000,000 was loaned. The immediate demand for Federal reserve notes will probably be far in excess of that sum, as the harvest season is limited to the farming season, while the entire United States will draw on the Federal reserve board for money to rediscount agricultural, industrial and commercial paper. The money for harvest emergencies was limited to 25 states and none of it went to New York and New England.

The new five dollar note submitted by Mr. Ralph is typical of agriculture. The portrait on the face of the note is Lincoln's, and the back shows a harvesting machine and allegorical figures typical of farming. The ten dollar note bears a portrait of Cleveland and a manufacturing scene. The twenty dollar note bears Jackson's portrait and is typical of commerce, having steamship, train and other mediums of trade on it.

Grant's portrait is shown on the fifty dollar note, and Franklin's portrait adorns the one hundred dollar bill. Both of these larger bills are typical of the arts. All the bills will be printed in green ink on the back, while black ink will be used on the face.

For some time the Treasury Department has been anxious to make all paper money more uniform. At present different portraits appear on different sorts of paper money of the same denomination. It is likely that the portraits selected for use on the Federal reserve notes will also be used on other paper money. So in the future all bank notes, gold certificates, silver certificates and Federal reserve notes of $5 denomination will probably bear Lincoln's portrait, and so on through the series up to $100.

Swan-Morrill.

A pretty home wedding took place at the home of Mrs. Kate Morrill on Monday, August 3rd when her daughter Laura B. Morrill was united in marriage to William Rae Swan, by Rev. Frank M. Lamb.

The ceremony was performed under an arch of evergreen and water lilies. The double ring service was used. The wedding march was played by Miss Josie Shaw of Buckfield, an aunt of the bride. The bride wore a gown of white crepe de chine with pearl trimmings, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations and maidenhair fern.

Mrs. Swan is the second daughter of the late George C. and Katie B. Morrill, a graduate of Buckfield High school, class of 1912, and has been a successful teacher in Sumner and Paris for the past two years.

Berry Picking Law.

The blueberry season is on in full swing, also the season for other berries and many are following a custom of years to pick a few quarts for home consumption and more for sale. It may not be generally known but there is a law forbidding berry pickers from going onto land without permission of the owners, for the purpose of picking berries.

The law in question is chapter 117 of the public laws of 1913, which amends section 14 of chapter 121 of the revised statutes, relating to malicious mischief, and trespass on property, so that the amended section reads as follows: "Section 14. Whoever willfully commits any trespass, or knowingly authorizes or employs another to do so, by entering the garden, orchard, pasture, cranberry ground, improved blueberry ground or improved land of another, with intent to take, carry away, destroy or injure trees, shrubs, grain, grass, hay, fruit, vegetables, turf or soil thereon, shall be punished by fine not exceeding $100, or imprisonment for not more than 90 days.

Automobile tourists come into Maine at the rate of over one every minute, according to a two hour's count made on the road between Portland and Portsmouth Saturday afternoon. The count was taken between 2.30 and 4.30 and was made by an automobile party bound to York Beach. During that time the party passed nearly 130 automobiles coming into Maine, bearing flags of states other than Maine, a record of a little over one every minute. Practically all these machines carried baggage and every appearance were tourists bound into the state.

Lumber Industry Investigation.

The plans now being perfected for the forest service part of the inquiry to be made jointly by the departments of forestry and agriculture into timber and lumber-trade conditions in the United States provide for covering entirely new ground.

Lumbermen are now admittedly conducting their operations with a large percentage of waste said to be largely due to market conditions which make close utilization unprofitable. There is no general agreement as to the actual causes of existing conditions and the responsibility for present unbalanced supplies of timber to draw upon, wasteful lumbering has become to be recognized as a matter of serious public concern and an inquiry to discover the cause and seek for possible remedies is regarded as a most urgent need.

It is believed that lumber industry itself recognizes the need and will welcome an inquiry conducted along constructive lines. Private capital invested in timberlands, mills, logging railroads, and others forms of equipment reaching an enormous aggregate and the lumber industry which employs 739,000 persons and has an annual output valued at 1-1-6 billion dollars, is the third largest in the country.

In seeking to discover conditions which will safeguard the public against wasteful methods of timber exploitation, possible timber monopoly, and other objectionable practices while insuring healthy conditions and fair treatment for the lumber trade, an understanding of the basic facts is indispensable. These facts, however, have never been ascertained in their entirety. It is the purpose of the Forest Service to obtain and interpret them impartially, in cooperation with the other bureaus assigned to the study.

Lumbermen complain that the carrying charges created by interest on long-term investments, taxes, and cost of fire protection where such protection is given compel them to operate even where lumber prices will not repay them the costs under these conditions.

The result is destruction of timber resources with no commensurate advantage to the consumer but with the certainty of unnecessarily high prices later. Yet restriction of competition on the part of lumbermen with a view to greater profits for themselves is a factor which is both objectionable from the standpoint of public policy. Thus a highly complex situation exists.

Any attempt to adjust the present conflict of interests on a basis fair both to the public and to the lumbermen demands full knowledge of all the facts.

Lines of inquiry provided for by the plans of the forest service include the present lumber output and demand, the conditions known to the trade as overcutting, the effects upon production and market prices of speculation in timber and of carrying charges, producing and distributing costs including freight and the charges levied upon the product by wholesalers and retailers, and the amount of waste in the handling and marketing of the product. Special attention will be given to means of utilizing low grades of lumber and by-products.

It is recognized that the national forests are becoming an increasingly important factor in the timber market, and the offerings of government stumpage, and this aspect of the situation will receive careful analysis. The question of future supplies and the need for the general practice of forestry to provide them is another important part of the study.

From the outset the data gathered by the bureau of domestic and foreign commerce of the department of commerce will be correlated with those in possession of the forest service and the bureau of land and natural resources. A complete and exhaustive study may be assured. Importations of timber products from foreign countries and the possible extension of foreign markets for our own timber are recognized as factors which must be thoroughly considered.

Keep Your Hens Contented.

In the "Poultry-Raising" department of the current issue of Farm and Fireside a contributor says that laying hens are contented hens. He says there are many ways to make your hens discontented, such as the following extract from his article appears considerable sound advice to poultry raisers on this point: "A hungry hen is not a contented hen. I have seen flocks that one would think at first sight were a healthy, energetic bunch but close observation soon showed they were rather a hungry bunch. Not just a little hungry, but very hungry."

"A flock that is fed at any old time is not a contented flock. If the hens are fed at certain times every day they soon learn when it is, and they will never expect to be fed between times. During the time between feeds they will go about their business with contentment, scratching, dusting, laying, sunning themselves, but never standing around as if they were waiting for food. As soon as they can get it, and clamoring for something to eat, probably eating but little when they get it. They will get the 'piecing habit' just the same as the children if you teach it to them, and the habit does not make for contentment."

"An injudicious method of turning the flock out to graze is another very common cause of discontent. If you let them out all day one day and keep them shut up the next, you will have a pretty good case of restlessness the second day. In fact, it will take them a week to get over their unrest and become satisfied with their lot. If you select a certain hour in the evening and let them out regularly at that hour you will have no trouble in a few days in making them go into the lot almost any time in the day and they would never make an attempt to get out, but when the hour arrives you will find them all eagerness, and if you open the door they are coming out or know the reason why."

HEALTHY PAST FIFTY

Careful diet is of utmost importance to men and women past fifty years of age; it keeps up their strength, and the oil-food in Scott's Emulsion is a nourishing food, a curative medicine and a sustaining tonic to regulate the functions of the body. It contains the medicinal fats of pure cod liver oil and science proves that they furnish twice as much energy as other foods—then too, it creates pure blood, sharpens the appetite, relieves rheumatism, strengthens the body and alleviates the ailments due to declining years. Scott's is free from wines, alcohol or harmful drugs. Beware of substitutes.

GROWING CHILDREN MUST BE WATCHED.

Children are subject to many minor ills, which unchecked speedily turn into serious sickness.

"L. E." Atwood's Medicine given promptly, checks those little ills. Used regularly as a TONIC, it is a splendid preventive of childhood ills.

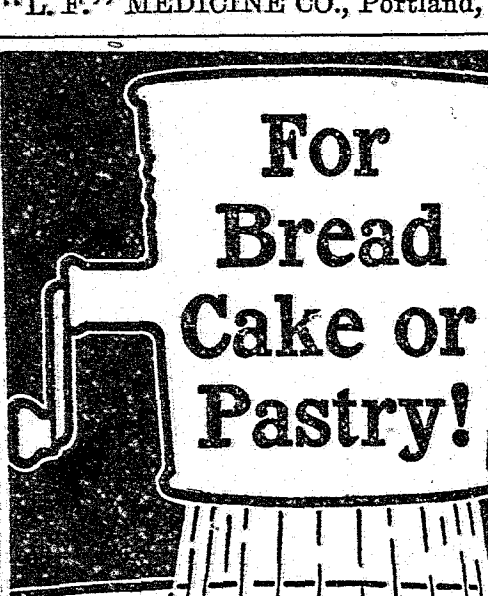

For relief of stomach and bowel troubles, it is unsurpassed. Eastbrook, Me.:
"I and my family use 'L. E.' Atwood's Medicine freely, keeping it in the house at all times. It is beneficial in many ways, especially for children, who have so many little complaints with stomach and bowels."

Legislation on Tuberculosis.

Legislation dealing with tuberculosis has been enacted in 48 states and territories of the United States, according to a comprehensive bulletin on this subject soon to be published by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. Only in the states of Arizona, Idaho, Nevada, Wyoming, and Alaska, has the subject been given no legislative consideration. State tuberculosis sanatoria to the number of 42 have been established in 33 different states. Special laws providing for the establishment of local hospitals by municipalities or counties have been passed in 14 states. In 34 states, laws are now in force providing for the reporting and registration of living cases of tuberculosis. In four states, New York, New Jersey, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, special laws have been enacted giving state and local health authorities power to remove and detain tuberculosis persons who menace the health of their families or associates. Six states, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Minnesota, New York, and Texas, have laws which give the people the privilege voting at general or special elections on the establishment of hospitals. Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, Wisconsin and Washington grant subsidies ranging from $3.00 to $5.00 per week to such local hospitals. Laws prohibiting spitting in public places have been enacted in more than 20 states. Commenting on the problem of state legislation as it affects the prevention of tuberculosis, The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis says: "A law providing for the reporting of every living case of tuberculosis is fundamental to any thoroughgoing campaign against this disease. Without knowledge of the location of every case of tuberculosis, of equal importance also is legislation which will give cities, towns, and counties the authority to establish and maintain local control of tuberculosis as a local problem. Everything possible should be done to provide institutions easy of access, especially for advanced cases."

Maine Toys.

Owing to the European war and the stopping of freights between Europe and America, it will be doubtful if orders for holiday toys can be filled. German made toys are famous the world over, as well as toys made in other foreign lands, and if the exportation of these is cut off, during the next few months, it will mean an enormous increase in the sale of American made toys.

Toy shops here in Maine are among the finest in the country and no doubt the present war situation will mean a boom to the South Paris and other toy establishments in the Pine Tree State.

Too Much City.

Every man makes mistakes. The wise profit by them—the foolish heed them not.

The young man of eighteen and twenty is on the threshold of life. He is face to face with one of the gravest of life's problems—his future.

At about this age many of the young men of the farm make their first great mistake, that of rushing to the big city.

It is often a fatal one.

The brilliant electric lights and the "great white way" make an alluring picture to them. It sounds the call to which youth quickly responds.

But all is not gold that glitters. There are many of dross.

Large cities are overcrowded with men from the green farms of the country. A limited few have met with success but the majority are in one weary and continuous struggle for bread.

For each job in the city there are from two to a hundred applicants. For every position of worth there are dozens of young men with "influential friends" to secure them preference.

Take a walk into the poorer districts of some great city. Ask the first "down town" man you meet, where he spent his youth. He will most likely tell you "on the farm—wish I was back again."

Go into the stores, the business offices, the shops, and ask the employees of mature years the same question. It will invariably be "on the farm, and I was a fool for ever leaving."

The best place in this world for the young man of the farm is right on that farm, or a better one.

If you use your brains there is no limit to the way you may dig from the soil. Your opportunities are as a hundred to one as compared to city life. The world is at the feet of the farmer.

The farm is crying for you—for like you. Cities are groaning under the weight of too many of you.

The young man of the farm is wise when he knows the value of his opportunities—the danger of chemical calls.

WEST FRYEBURG.

Sterling Literary Club.

The Sterling Literary club met on Wednesday, August 5th at the home of its new president, Mrs. Kate Meserve.

There was a good attendance and lively interest in the chapter of Mr. Haskin's story of the building of the Panama canal which was read by Mrs. Meserve.

In the chapter alluded to it is interesting to note the generosity of General G. H. Dyer in giving credit to those who preceded him in the work of the great ditch.

The sketch of the home life of the women of the South American republics as read by Mrs. Andrews and Mrs. Hill from the Bay View magazine, was interesting and was the ending of the lesson of the day, which was followed by a little talk of the great war now going on among our neighbors across the seas.

After adjournment at 4 p. m., ice cream and cakes were served by the hostess.

11-pound Salmon Caught by Little Girl.

A rather sensational event here on Tuesday morning was the unexpected, salmon from Bear Pond ever caught in modern days, within the memory of any living person.

The person who accomplished that piscatory feat was little Barbara Higgins, six years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Higgins of Baintree, Mass.

The fish, which weighed 11 pounds, land-locked salmon of the Sebago Lake family, a distant relative of course.

The young girl had the skilled assistance of her father in the managing of the great fish before the final coupe (or scoop) was effected, but it was Barbara's rod and line that hooked him and she is awarded the honor of being the champion of the season.

Once worn always worn

Every Nemo Corset has the patented and exclusive Nemo triple strip reinforcement. The "pocket" of each bone and steel, at top and bottom is protected by three thicknesses of material. Bones and steels are prevented from cutting through at the top and bottom of the corset. That is one reason why Nemo Corsets out-wear all other corsets. The latest Nemo inventions Lastikops Webbing and Lastikop Cloth have actually revolutionized corset making and placed Nemo Corsets still more clearly in a class alone secure from competition.

Death of Harry O. Burbank.
Harry O. Burbank passed away Thursday Morning, August 6th at his home in Porter at the age of 40 years, 1 month, 46 days. Death was due to injuries received by a fall from a load of hay on Friday, July 24th, when his horse became frightened and started to run, one of them having rubbed off its bridle, and Mr. Burbank was seriously injured by the fall.

He was born in Conway, N. H., and was the son of Lyman and Mary Ann Stanley. He was educated in the schools of Porter. He came from Conway, N. H., to live in the homestead where he died when he was but a year old.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at the Stanley Meeting house, previous to which prayers were held at the home. Three beautiful selections were rendered by the quartette composed of Mrs. Edward Elliott, Mrs. James Chapman, Benjamin Ridlon and William T. Norton. The bearers were Homer Stetson, Curtis Fox, Paul Stearns and Robert Merrill. The Knights of Pythians performed their last rights over the remains at the cemetery. Maine Roads.

Road Building Complaints.
A letter has been sent to various chairmen and road commissioners in Maine by the State Highway Commission stating that numerous complaints had been received with respect to the manner in which road repairs were being made. It also stated that Municipal officers have been told repeatedly to use the road machine and the split log drag more, and that as a result their money would go farther and their roads would be better.

In town after town this year—the same thing has been true for several years—mile after mile of road which was in excellent surface has been absolutely spoiled by the injudicious use of the road machine.

The roads in this State, generally speaking, would be in much better condition than they are today if the road machine had never been seen inside the State boundary.

If it is necessary to use the road machine in resurfacing the road or bringing new material into it, be sure to clean up and remove all sods, leaves, stones and other similar matter which usually collects in a ridge along the center of the road.

Following is the letter from Governor Haines to the Commissioner:

To the State Highway, Commission, Augusta, Maine.
Gentlemen:—The people of Maine are greatly interested in the improvement of our highways. It is evident from some correspondence that I am receiving that the so-called Highway Law, passed by the last legislature is not well understood; but I wish to call attention to one provision which the people as a rule approve of, and which is not being complied with, and which it seems to me you have the power to enforce, and that is the violation of Section Two of Chapter One Hundred and Eighty-nine of the Public Laws of 1913, with reference to placing turf in the traveled part of the highway, and which prohibits the same.

The new State Highway Law places the authority with you to withhold payment for highways for municipalities which may be due them from the State until such turf is removed. Section Eighteen of Chapter One Hundred Thirty provides that the State Aid Highways shall be continually maintained under the direction and control of the State Highway Commissioners at the joint expense of the State and the towns, not exceeding thirty dollars per mile per annum, and not exceeding fifty per cent. of the actual cost to be paid by the town. This applies to State aid highways heretofore laid out and such as you have taken over or may designate, and you are further authorized to take over such highways as seems necessary for the purpose of maintenance.

Now I realize that under this statute you are burdened with work to an extent which perhaps the people generally do not realize. The establishment of a new system, under a new law by which the State assumes a great work heretofore done by town officials, by your department, is no small undertaking, but the people are now finding out that we have three kinds of roads as provided by this law, State roads, State aid roads and town roads, and they are looking to you as having authority and control over the two former kinds of roads, and they are looking to you to break up this old method of putting sods in the roads, which is still continued, as I know from personal observations, in many towns.

Many people also believe that the so-called "road machine," which scrapes up the sod from the ditch and places it in the road annually and many times makes the road worse rather than better, is more often a nuisance than otherwise. While it is useful in some places, its universal use has now come to be looked upon as an unnecessary expense, and in its place many people believe the split log drag should be used.

Now have you not authority under the statutes above cited to advise and direct the officers in charge of the highways in the towns against the putting of sods in the road, and in favor of the use of the split log drag in place of the road machine where its use would be more economical and give better results? Can't you show to the municipalities of Maine that one pair of horses drawing a log drag driven by one man, and with one man following with garden rake to throw out the little rocks and fill up the holes which the log drag does not fill, will accomplish more than the expenditure of three times its cost with the road machine? Can't you get the towns to appoint sections men to go over the roads which you have control under the law with the split log drag, and can't you compel them to do it on the State aid roads and State roads, which are under your control? Can't you show to them that a few hours' work with the split log drag and a team and two men after a shower or a rain will put several miles of road in good condition? Can't you get them to divide the work up in their towns into sections, giving each section to one man to take care of in this way, and have the roads fixed up when they ought to be fixed, and keep them nice and smooth all the time?

If you can bring this about, you will accomplish a most important practical improvement in the highways which we have now. Someone ought to have authority to do this, and I believe you have under the law as it now exists, and I apply to you in behalf of the people of the State of Maine in some way to bring about and accomplish this result. Everybody is looking to you, our new Highway Commission, not only for the building of new roads, but for the improvement of the methods of handling the roads we have, and with your power under the law to employ engineers and inspectors, it seems to me that you can do no better than devote a part of your time to this work. What the town officers want to be shown is that the use of the road machine is not the best method, and that they will most readily adopt your suggestions when they understand them.

We have $300,000 in the State treasury specially appropriated to be paid over to the towns for the year 1914 in aid of State aid roads. We shall also have more than $150,000 surplus receipts from automobile licenses about what will be required to meet the interest and principal of the bond issue authorized and issued for this year, which will also be paid over to the towns to assist them in the maintenance of State aid roads. Now with this great assistance from the treasury of the State, which all the people have been taxed to raise, it does seem as though the people of the State through their State officials, whose officials you are, should have some of this money expended in the maintenance of the roads we already have, and particularly in the improvement of the methods of maintenance.

I believe you will find that the inspection system, if you can work it out

"Gets-It" for Corns Sure as Sunrise

New Plan. Corns Shriveled, Vanish.

Until "GETS-IT" was born nobody was ever sure of getting rid of a corn. Corn treatments nearly all contained the same ingredients, only some were liquid, some plasters, some

"wrappers" and some in salve form. Now comes "GETS-IT" with a newly discovered formula—the corn cure on a new principle and a simple plan that never fails. This is why "GETS-IT" has grown in three years to be the biggest-selling corn cure the world has ever known.

There's no more need of fussing with corns, no more digging or cutting. There's nothing to press down on the corn, nothing to inflame the flesh, to "pull" the corn or cause pain. Put two drops of "GETS-IT" on in two seconds. That's all. For any corn, callus, wart or bunion. "GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by H. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

and get its adoption in the towns, will prove of the greatest benefit to our State, that the use of the split log drag will prove one of the best devices, and the preventing of putting sods in the highways a remedy for one of our greatest highway evils.

Will you please give these matters your earnest consideration, and greatly favor, Very truly yours,
WILLIAM T. HAINES.
